“ I knew Pam (aka Malibu) on the Komen site when I was first diagnosed. Her wit and humor helped me through many a bad day during treatment. Then when we met face to face at the Breast Fest in Indiana, it was a hope come true. We had the best times that year and the next, and also meeting in Chicago in between. I will never forget her smile or her hugs. Keep watch over us Pam, we still need your smile.

“ I met Pam a.k.a. Malibu in a chat room on www.susangkomen.org in 2007. Pam and I shared so many stories, dreams, hopes, and just pure sisterhood love! Pam was such an honest, caring, never a bad thought and had always such a wonderful way of making you feel "special"! We both were there for each other through thick-n-thin and shared so many stories of our family, friends and just girl talk...including a Malibu with coke here and there!

I truly am so blessed to have met Pam in 2008 at a breast cancer survivor "celebration" that "five" sisters myself included having organized called Breast Fest, which is held in Angola, IN every October. My first meeting of Pam in the flesh, was the greatest gift ever, I was able to put a face with the person that I had never met yet only via online on www.susangkomen.org. My husband also had the chance to meet Pam and had such a wonderful time just reminising with Pam of just life in general! He knew that Pam and I shared so many things together sometimes during the wee hours of the night till morning break....

I am so missing those times..but I do know that Pam is at peace now! I feel her smiles everytime I look up at the sky, as I remember those being so infectiously beautiful:)

I just have to say that everytime, I see a "P!nk" sunset, I will know that Pam is just making a statement of how wonderful "P!nk kisses" look from heavens view!

Till we meet again my sweet sista and sending BIG "P!NK" kisses right back at you....

“ My heart hurts for the loss of Pam a.k.a. Malibu. Pam and I both met in 2007 on line in a chat room for breast cancer survivors sponsored by Susan G. Komen! Pam and I both shared so many likeness that I will only mention a few of and the remainder will go on till we meet again i.e., A mom, wife, daughter, sister, breast cancer survivor, and a wonderful friend! Pam loved life, she loved her children, her husband and everything regarding sisterhood. I remember when I first met Pam on line and noticed her nickname Malibu. I knew from then, we had a lot of common ground, as I love Malibu too just not in coke ha ha:) But on the serious side of things, Pam shared with me highs and lows of everyday life, her dreams of seeing her daughter get married, her beautiful granddaughter, her "puppy" omy goodness and her husband whom she loves so much! When my husband met Pam for the first time in 2008 at a sisterhood reunion called "breast fest" in Angola, In. He knew without words just what the connection was with both Pam and myself. Pam had a heart of gold that I cannot even give enough credit for...she was always more concerned about everyone else then her own being! She never had a bad word to speak about anyone and her "smile" was infectious:) I am really going to miss her presence in my life. We will meet again, but in the meantime everytime I look up to the sky, I will know you are smiling right back down at me and everytime, I see a "Pink" sunset that you are making that happen for us sista's:)

PINK kisses my sweet sista~Sue from IN

Pam and I met in Oct.2008 at our Second Breast Fest gathering in Indiana. Pam that pretty smile and sense of humor. We kept in touch and she along with Nancy and Nubia returned in Oct. 2009 for our third Breast Fest Sisterhood gathering. One could not help but bond with Nancy. She will always be remembered and missed. Thank you Pam for being part of my life.

*Hugs and Love,
Judy*
